

The latest debatable hymenoplasty for troubled females!

Some religious beliefs, cultural backgrounds are always debatable. Even though our science and researches have advanced far beyond moon, there are many customs and traditions that still hold fast. One of them is retention of hymen in females before first intercourse.

This is so very ridiculous taking into consideration the vulnerability of hymen due to even slight accidents occurring during life. However, for those groups of orthodox minds, a cosmetic surgery has been developed in order to reconstructing the broken hymen due to any reason. Among various vaginal surgeries, this hymenoplasty is fast gaining popularity.

First of all, you must search for a good cosmetic surgeon if you want to undergo hymenoplasty for any reason. Because approaching experts for such procedure is always beneficial. Try out the online surgery directory of cosmetic surgeons in United States and Canada and search for a doctor close to your area. Once you finalize your doctor, your half the work is done.

How the procedure is performed?

The torn hymen due to any reason is placed with the help of sutures and the edges of torn hymen are brought back together to form the star shaped membrane again. The membrane is a source of controversy since long.

However women want their torn hymen in place prior to their wedding night and they are even ready to spend their fortune for the same. Little older women may want to combine this surgery with may be vaginal rejuvenation for enhancing the sexual pleasure that has dwindled due to one or the other factor.

Why hymenoplasty provoke contradiction?

Well, for many people, this procedure means that woman can manipulate her virginity. By opting for hymenoplasty, she is hiding her past and has lost chastity. However, this is a myth nowadays because the hymen can be physiologically broken due to many factors like horse riding, sudden jerks or accidents, masturbation, etc.

But its lack during first night with the partner may provoke some unnecessary talks about her character. To avoid them, she likes to undergo hymenoplasty, a procedure that can make her path hassle free. However, even today, many physicians do not perform procedures in already married women due to risk of irking the religious schools.

Whatever said and done, the procedures like hymenoplasty are fast gaining popularity because of the obvious reasons and more and more cosmetic surgeons are performing the surgery without leaving any trails. Most of the times, they defend themselves saying that it is their duty to perform surgery desired by patients.

No wonder number of authorized hymenoplasty done in recent past has increased. Why not? Woman is empowered today to take her decisions and even law has empowered her to put forth her desires wherever she feels necessary.

The cosmetic surgery is a field mainly where she can get her surgery done electively. The cosmetic surgeon can become her best friend who imparts her feel-good factor by imparting her dignity.

That's why the procedures like hymenoplasty, labiaplasty and vaginal rejuvenation are widely used methods to secure women's rights in their own terms!
