

Unlocking your cell phone for use of Zone specific or international SIM Card

When you are moving across the globe on travel, the best way for constant communication with your associates, kith and kin would be your cell phone. However while using the cell phone you will require the SIM Card that could be either zone specific or international. But you can not just insert a new SIM Card in your cell phone and use it. You require your cell phone to be unlocked for the purpose.

Unlocking advantages –

Ordinarily the network provider locks the handset so that it would accept only a specific type of SIM Card and not others and you are stranded while trying to use some other SIM Card in your cell phone. Thus when you buy a handset that is locked to Vodafone it may not work with the SIM Card from O2 or Orange or others.

However if you can unlock the phone it will accept any of the SIM Cards for the purpose of making calls or receiving them. You can use the UK SIM Card or the France SIM Card on the same cell phone.

Reasons why you would like to unlock the cell phone – For swapping the SIM Cards when you possess more than one belonging to different networks. The substitute network might be less expensive compared to the network you are using. For overseas travel you may require a SIM Card compatible to the new land in place of your present SIM Card. This will save you money. If you desire to sell your handset and have a new one your SIM may not work in it and you will require a phone that is unlocked. Checking whether your phone is locked –

You may be wondering that how could you find out whether your phone is locked. Different networks will display different messages when you try to insert SIM Card not compatible to your phone. For example the Nokia will display “SIM Card rejected” while Sony Ericsson will display the message “Incorrect SIM Card”. Samsung will display “Invalid Network SIM” and Motorola will ask “Enter special code”. In brief an error message will invariably be displayed on your cell phone screen when you try such insertions.

When you cannot access a SIM Card from a different network then you may use a crude method to check whether your handset is locked. Find out whether the network has placed their logo on your cell phone. Some of the networks badge the cell phone with their logo either in the front or on the back. This will clearly indicate that your mobile phone is customized and locked for other networks.

Is unlocking legal?

Yes, unlocking is legal since you are the owner of your cell phone and has got the veritable right to use any of the networks according to your convenience. Rather locking the phone is illegal. You may at any time exercise your consumer rights to unlock the cell phone you are possessing. The network providing you the phone is bound to provide you the unlock code. The only catch is that the code will cost you around 35 pounds in UK or nearly 75 dollars in USA.

About the Author

If you wish to have a comprehensive data base on locking and unlocking of cell phones and different SIM Card use related to it please log on to this website. It will provide you locking and unlocking processes for UK SIM Card, France SIM Card, China SIM Card and International SIM Card.

Source: <http://www.apibari.com>